Dedicated to the memory of the six million Jews who were killed in the last war... A tribute to the nobility and grandeur of a great people, mirroring their sadness, austerity, perseverance and integrity.

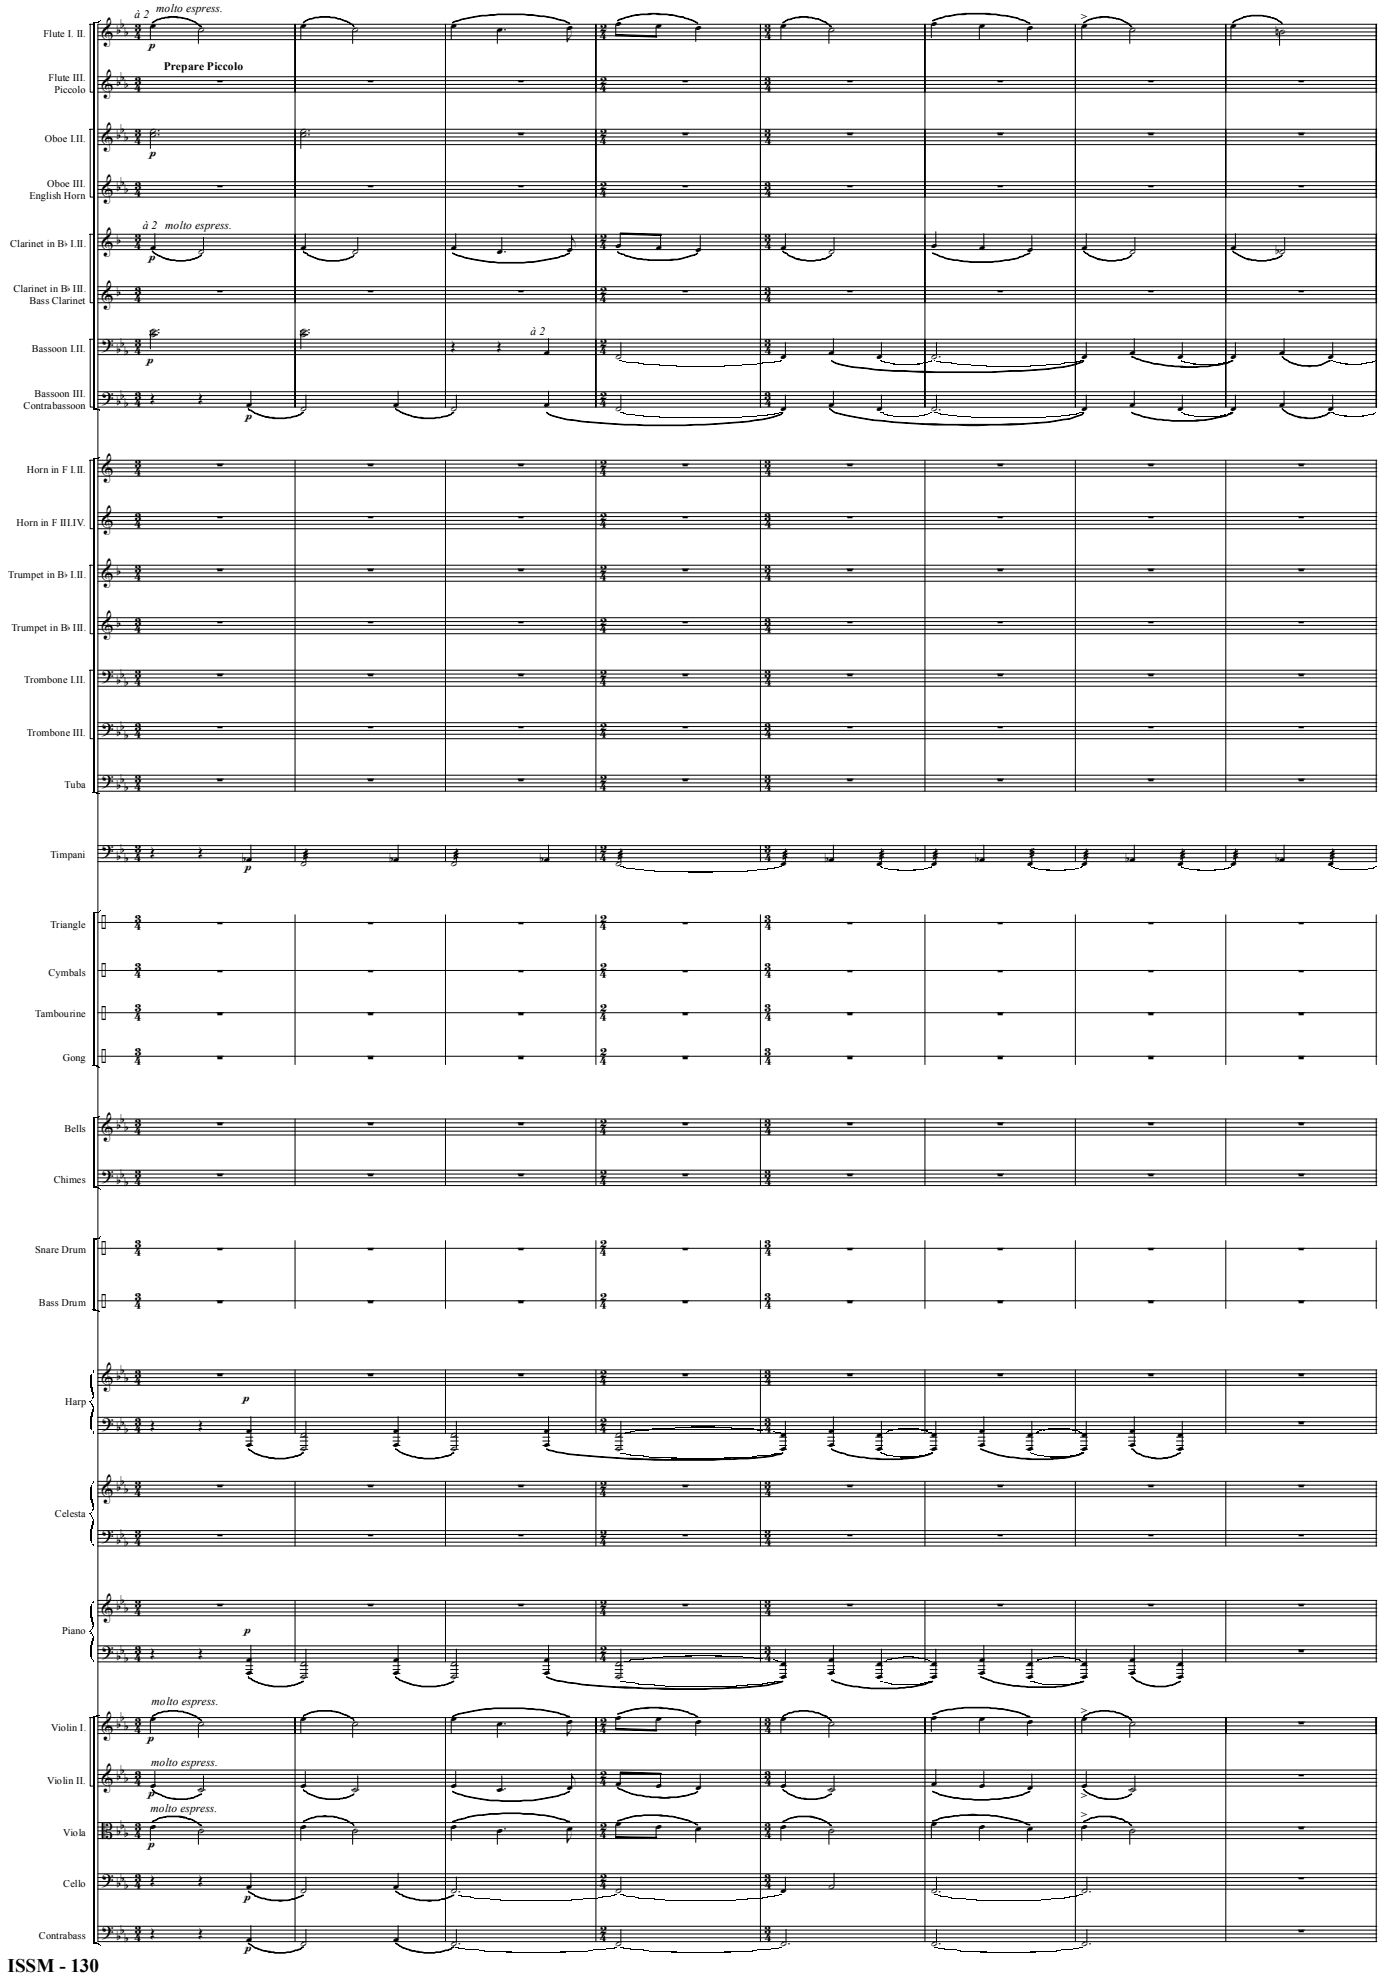

The work is in one movement, with the opening theme developing into a funeral march, interrupted momentarily by a chassidic dance. This however, breaks off, the funeral motive reappears, leading imperceptibly into the last section: this attempts to portray the hopes and salvation of the Jewish people, to presage the day when race hatred will be banished forever, and all peoples will live in harmony with one another, the symbol of detente being the only guarantee that this will come about. The ultimate abolition of all wars.
